Subject: Chat with Andrew Stein
From: Andrew Stein <steinlink@gmail.com> To: barriticus@gmail.com me: http://www.typewith.me/qdjqeFFu8O me: IF you have a few minutes to add your input, would be appreciated Andrew: did you mean to capitalize if?

me: no me: but, yeah, can you give this a look see and tell me what you think before I start editing into new document>?
me: want to release it soon me: are you there? me: if you can't do it that's fine, let me know Andrew: yeah, ill look at it in a few minutes Andrew: I'm jsut finishing a commit me: awesome, thanks me: http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Socks_the_Cat_Rocks_the_Hill Andrew: I'd give my left nut for a rom of that me: I wouldn't be surprised if that's available me: they seriously made the then-most-recent president of the U.S. a bad guy me: and another still-living U.S. prez me: I should forward this to Red State Andrew: it was written & published by japanese company me: oh, you're right. That's an important detail that exonerates those responsible to some extent so Red State won't be interested me: as they would be ethically obligated to note thaty Andrew: exactly; redstate would never exploit something out of context me: if only there were some less-than-moral conservative outlet in existence me: perhaps a poorly-coded blog me: run by maniacs me: WELL WE CAN ALWAYS DREAM me: simple math, Stein me: also me: Fallout New Vegas me: is fucking awesome me: it's one of the greatest games ever Andrew: ok
Andrew: skyrim looks awesome Andrew: and unfortunately i may enver get to play fallout nv Andrew: unless i buy a ps3 Andrew: which doesnt seem likely me: yeah, Skyrim is going to redeem problems with Oblivion, it seems me: to some extent, at least me: they're already stuck on that mass appeal path Andrew: mass appeal == "we will fix ll the things about rpgs that you normally have to just tolerate to get to the good parts" me: well, compare Oblivion to Morrowind me: (because no one has done that before) me: they took out some of the rich complexities in terms of magic me: and dumbed down the story to some extent me: but yeah, I'd really, really appreciate it if you'd look at that document me: and just let me know your thoughts me: this is pretty important to me and a lot of other people